

The Registered Disability Savings Plan

BC EDITION

Saving for a Good Life

When my son Joshua became disabled at five months of age I was not ready for this change to my son's life, nor to my own. Like many I grew up in a community where individuals with a disability were segregated. I had no first hand experience of how to support a child with a disability. What I did know is that I had a responsibility to care for my son, now and in the future. —Ted Kuntz

Cathy and I knew that our son would not grow up to be independent. Josh would require care and support for the rest of his life. We recognized that our responsibility to Josh didn't end when we died, rather it ends when Josh dies. Our greatest challenge was to find a way to care for our son after we died or became unable to care for him.

The most valuable lesson that we have learned in our journey with our son has been PLAN's advice that we need to think about both Josh's social and financial well-being if we want to secure a good life for him.

A Registered Disability Savings Plan (RDSP) will be an important part in securing Josh's financial future. An RDSP will help to ensure that Josh will have resources to access services and opportunities that will provide him with a good life.

An RDSP will enable Josh to access the latest medical advances that are often not covered by our medical system and whatever supports or services might exist in the future to ensure his health and happiness.

In the meantime, his RDSP provides us with peace of mind knowing that we have planned for our son's future.

What is a Registered Disability Savings Plan?

The RDSP will help you or your family member save money for the future. If you put a bit of money into an RDSP each year, it will grow into a lot of money.

The federal government will also put money into the RDSP. Sometimes you can get money from the federal government for your RDSP even if you don't put any money in!

Your BC Disability Assistance will not be reduced. The money in an RDSP can grow to whatever amount and you can still receive your BC Disability Assistance. You can also use the money in the RDSP for anything you want.

What is the Canada Disability Savings Bond?

The Canada Disability Savings Bond is money that the federal government will put into an RDSP. If family income is less than $24,183* per year then the federal government will put in $1,000 per year. If family income is between $24,183* and $41,544* they will put in some but less than $1,000.

Before December 31st of the year the person with a disability turns 18, it is the family income that counts. After that it is the person's income that counts.

You don't even have to put anything into the RDSP to get the Bond!

The maximum amount of Bond the federal government will put into an RDSP is $20,000 over the person's lifetime.

*Income amounts shown are for 2010, amounts are updated each year based on the rate of inflation.

What is the Canada Disability Savings Grant?

The Canada Disability Savings Bond is money that the federal government will put into an RDSP when a person with a disability or family members or friends put money in. In some cases the federal government will put in $3 for every $1 that other puts in.

Usually, the most that the federal government will put into an RDSP in an year is $3,500. The most that the federal government will contribute in the life of the person is $70,000. Like the Bond, the amount the federal government puts in depends on the family income until December 31st of the year that the person turns 18. After that date, it is the person's income that counts. To get either the Bond or the Grant the person has to be 49 or younger.

QUICK FACTS

Key Terms

Registered Disability Savings Plan = The new plan to help you or your relative with a disability save for the future.

RDSP = Short form for Registered Disability Savings Plan.

Account holder = The person who manages the RDSP and makes the decisions on how to invest.

Bond = money the federal government puts into an RDSP even when you or your relative don't put money in.

Grant = money the federal government puts into an RDSP when you or your family or friends put money in.

Registered Disability Savings Plan

- Helps you or your family member save for the future.
- You don't have to pay taxes on money in the RDSP, and payments will only be partially taxed.
- You can put up to $200,000 dollars into the RDSP.
- Anyone can contribute to the RDSP. You, your family, friends, neighbours, or anyone else.
- The federal government will put in up to $90,000.
- You can open a plan at most major financial institutions in Canada—check www.rdsp.com for the full list.
- You do not need to visit a lawyer or accountant to set up a plan.

Where to get more information about the RDSP

- Visit www.rdsp.com or www.disabilitysavings.gc.ca
- For Questions—Call 1 800 O-Canada (1-800-622-6232)
- For Questions by TTY—Call 1-800-926-9105
- Take a free Telephone Seminar on the RDSP by calling PLAN at 604-439-9566 www.plan.ca
- Pick up a free copy of our book Safe and Secure: RDSP Edition at any London Drugs pharmacy

How does the RDSP work?

Kathy and Rob set up an RDSP for their daughter.

Kathy and Rob live in New Westminster British Columbia. The Bromley's have two children, Michael and Shannon. Shannon is 15 and has a severe disability called Angelmann's Syndrome. Shannon loves playing baseball, skiing, and swimming with dolphins.

Kathy and Rob are in good health, but they are worried about what will happen to Shannon when they pass away. An RDSP would be one way of preparing for the future and could really help Shannon to plan for a good life. Saving on their own has been difficult.

From age 45 to death, the RDSP will make monthly payments to Shannon

With the RDSP they can set aside small amounts of money and the federal government would contribute alongside their savings. With the income it could earn when they invest, it could grow into a large amount of money.

Shannon could use it to pay for a home when she's older, to cover additional supports, or just use it for things that she might not be able to afford otherwise.

Rob and Kathy went to www.rdsp.com and looked at the RDSP calculator. They used the calculator to figure out how much the plan would grow if they put $200 a month into an RDSP for Shannon.

Here's how it works:

FROM AGE 15 TO 34

Kathy and Rob open an RDSP for Shannon at their local bank and deposit $2,000.

They put $200 per month in the RDSP for 20 years. (that's a total of $48,000)

The federal government puts in $79,500.

FROM AGE 35 TO 45

Shannon waits ten years to withdraw money because she doesn't want to return any Grant or Bond to the federal government.

AT AGE 45

Shannon's RDSP is worth more than $377,237.

FROM AGE 45 TO DEATH

The RDSP will make monthly payments to Shannon

AGE 45 $850/MONTH

AGE 55 $1500/MONTH

AGE 65 $2500/MONTH

AGE 75 $4200/MONTH

At Shannon's death, whatever is left in her RDSP will be part of her estate and distributed through her Will.

MONEY IN SHANNON'S RDSP

This graph shows how Shannon's RDSP could grow. You can see that it starts at zero at age 15 (on the bottom) and grows to more than $500,000 when she is 65. Remember that this is a prediction and that it could grow faster or slower depending how well her investments do. We have estimated Shannon's return on her investments of 5.5%.

MONTHLY PAYMENTS FROM SHANNON'S RDSP

This graph shows how much Shannon would receive each year from her RDSP. At age 45, she would get $10,000. At age 60, she would get about $22,000 per year. The payments in this scenario are determined by a set formula. The payments could be different if Shannon and her family put in more than the federal government or if she purchases an annuity.

Keep in mind that Shannon could keep her RDSP payments and also her British Columbia Disability Benefits.

Questions and Answers

1

WHO QUALIFIES FOR THE RDSP?

People who live in Canada.

People who get the Disability Tax Credit.

People who are 59 or younger can put money in an RDSP.

People who are 49 or younger can get the federal government money.

2

WHAT IS THE DISABILITY TAX CREDIT?

A tax credit is something you claim when you do your Income Tax Return so you don't have to pay so much tax.

The Disability Tax Credit is a credit that a person gets if they are disabled. Parents that are caring for a child with a disability can also claim it to save taxes.

You or your family member must apply for the Disability Tax Credit to be able to claim it or to be able to open an RDSP.

3

HOW DO WE APPLY FOR THE DISABILITY TAX CREDIT?

To apply for the Disability Tax Credit you need to get your doctor or other qualified health professional to fill out a special form and send it to Canada Revenue Agency.

The form that needs to be filled out is called Form T-2201. After looking at the form, they will let you know whether you have been approved. If you have questions or want to get the form, call the CRA at 1-800-959-2221.

4

WILL I OR MY FAMILY MEMBER LOSE DISABILITY ASSISTANCE?

No. A person can have as much as they want in an RDSP and can also receive and use the money from the RDSP without affecting their BC Disability Benefits.

BC Disability Assistance & the RDSP

What is BC Disability Assistance?

If you live in British Columbia, are 18 years or older, have a low income and a disability, you could get BC Disability Assistance. These benefits assist with housing, food, shelter, clothing and disability related items. You can also receive support for employment and other medical benefits.

BC Income Limits

Any money from a trust, employment, self employment or pension must be reported. BC Disability Assistance allows you to earn an additional $500 without it impacting your benefits.

Any money coming out of an RDSP is not counted as income, and will not be deducted from your BC Disability Assistance cheque!

BC Asset Limits

You are allowed to have a certain amount of valuable items without having any money deducted from your cheque. These items are called assets and include things like cash, property, clothing and other possessions. Some assets, like your house or car, are completely exempt and you do not have any money deducted from your BC Disability Assistance cheque for their value.

Other assets, like cash and bank accounts, are exempt up to a certain amount of value. For example, as a single person, the asset exemption is $3,000. You can have assets worth $3,000 without having any deduction to your cheque.

An RDSP is in addition to these assets and is not limited to $3000 in value!

What if I set up an RDSP? Can I still get my BC Disability Assistance?

Yes. If you set up an RDSP, you will still receive all your BC Disability Assistance from the province. Even if your RDSP grows to be a large amount of money and you take the money out, you will not lose your BC Disability Assistance.

How do I get BC Disability Assistance?

For information on how to apply, contact the Ministry of Housing and Social Development, toll free at 1-800-663-7867, TTY 1-800-661-8773.

Things you must do to set up an RDSP!

- Get your social insurance number
- Apply for the Disability Tax Credit
- File your income tax returns (for the past two years)
- Choose your financial institution
- Choose your holder
- Open your account

Once open, you will need to invest and manage your money!

The Step-by-Step guide will assist you, friends or family to become eligible, open and manage your RDSP. Download your copy at www.rdsp.com or www.getsmarteraboutmoney.ca

Subscribe to get regular information from PLAN

An independent voice for families of people with disabilities.

Information and resources to secure a good life for your loved one.

Subscribe to receive:

- Monthly information with news, stories and planning tips
- Connect with families across the country
- Strengthen a national family voice
- Updates on advocacy and policy initiatives
- 25% discount on seminars
- Web-based resources
- Abilities or Exceptional Family Magazine

Visit www.plan.ca to join!